

"AS IT RELATES" ...

HEY GUYS, (respect to all faiths...and Abraham is Abraham)

Just a quick “as it relates” point of light...so how does it all go back to the story of “Allah” Clarence 13? (Travelling M.C.s’ would do us all a favor by reading the book cover to cover...y’all know which one 😊) Everybody has their own faith, but if we are talking about the B topic which is related to the 5% movement, we need to understand that Black, Brown and Yellow are supposed to work together.

Getting into “ciphers” and building, “word is bond”, “seeds”...Knowledge (Know the edge), Wisdom (knowledge manifested) and Understanding (standing under the knowledge and wisdom)...this all goes back to this time. So as a music culture, we should respect it’s meaning of build and not destroying eachother. Our kids deserve this...

Well, the B thing is actually connected to that history...Which is why we need to be clear about what it is? It’s actually about cultural empowerment, unity, and faith. Not Black or white! It’s spiritual discernment, not skin color. That’s what “Allah” was teaching. It’s knowledge is build or destroy...so he would say the present “create our own rules” version is not his understanding of “God within”...because the NOI teachings are clear about self discipline, and righteous ways. The people’s crown of unity and empowerment is “the cream rising to the top”!

That said, there was a huge Hiphop supernova that occurred in the midst of what he called “wayward teachings”. This shows us how God has used it to the good, and will be bringing the whole thing all the way around to teach the world about love...

O.k., so with what we have left of the story....there is a rift between factions, that we have tried to help bring peace to....we don't wish a "reconciling" on it...because it effects our peace...it's just that one side wants to flash the money in the other's face, and one wants to teach integration, and wants the other to pay for the mind crime and teaching the selfishness and polygamy thing...(which all sides are truly guilty of) The problem is that sooo many folks are not able to speak the "correct" English" or work in an office with the same mannerisms, which is why the Rap movement is so important to a lot of young kids... so as elders...let's try to "reconcile" the whole thing ourselves, so kids can do what they do, gently teach the lessons over time...or it's gonna be a mess...it's all love people ...no problem...let's work towards a common goal of world peace..

So as far as why not helping the B subjects...well there was a many year argument between folks...as far as my directly related Brother (divine decided) and I...he woke up, had a great team to make his career with, made it happen, and still goin'...since I was the "offshoot" from a cultural heritage that was supposed to be a miracle to believe in or have hope about...I had to do my own thing...if there had not been such an argument (and "filled" with so many directly effecting industry relative faction arguments)...he and I (and some of the other fellow musicians) would have collab'd a long time ago...My humility, and "fellow musicianness" was the good stuff...

Another note though...well, not to mention, many folks wanted to make me feel "lesser", because of my skin being different, and that I had family love and some things growing up...but now, their kids are those with "things"...so how do we raise the kids so they are humble and respectful?...good question...maybe the fellaz will share about that one...☺ I wasn't a competitor... "whatever, let's get together”... “the earlier reports were wrong”...but this was actually about unity, and beside I am part of them...so we all will find out over time...

The word says that there has to be some division in order to bring light to it....so maybe, there needed to be an argument, for there to be a resolution?...something that the world can relate to and understand...humans just HAVE to learn the hard way....we see a similar story over at another B situation...the argument is still doin' it's thang....as we are trying to move on...even though there are still arguments...ain't fun...here's to peace... “so we'll keep tryin' to magnify the good in eachother from a distance” and stay well everyone.....

Cool then...that's good for now....be well...take a rest for us....I love...peace